LEGEND

WEEQUAHIC HIGH SCHOOL
NEWARK, NEW JERSEY

OVERTURE

We are the music makers!
Out of the deafening silence
Kindles a strain of Hope,
A rhythm of growing opulence,
A resonant metered scope.

We are the music makers!
Out of our groping ditties
Flames a melody of Will,
The Will that boldly builds cities,
Turning chaos to symmetry still.

We are the music makers!
Out of some orderly score
Fires a theme . . . Harmony,
The essence, the rapture, the core,
The pinnacle of Life's symphony.

THE GRUBER CONCERTO

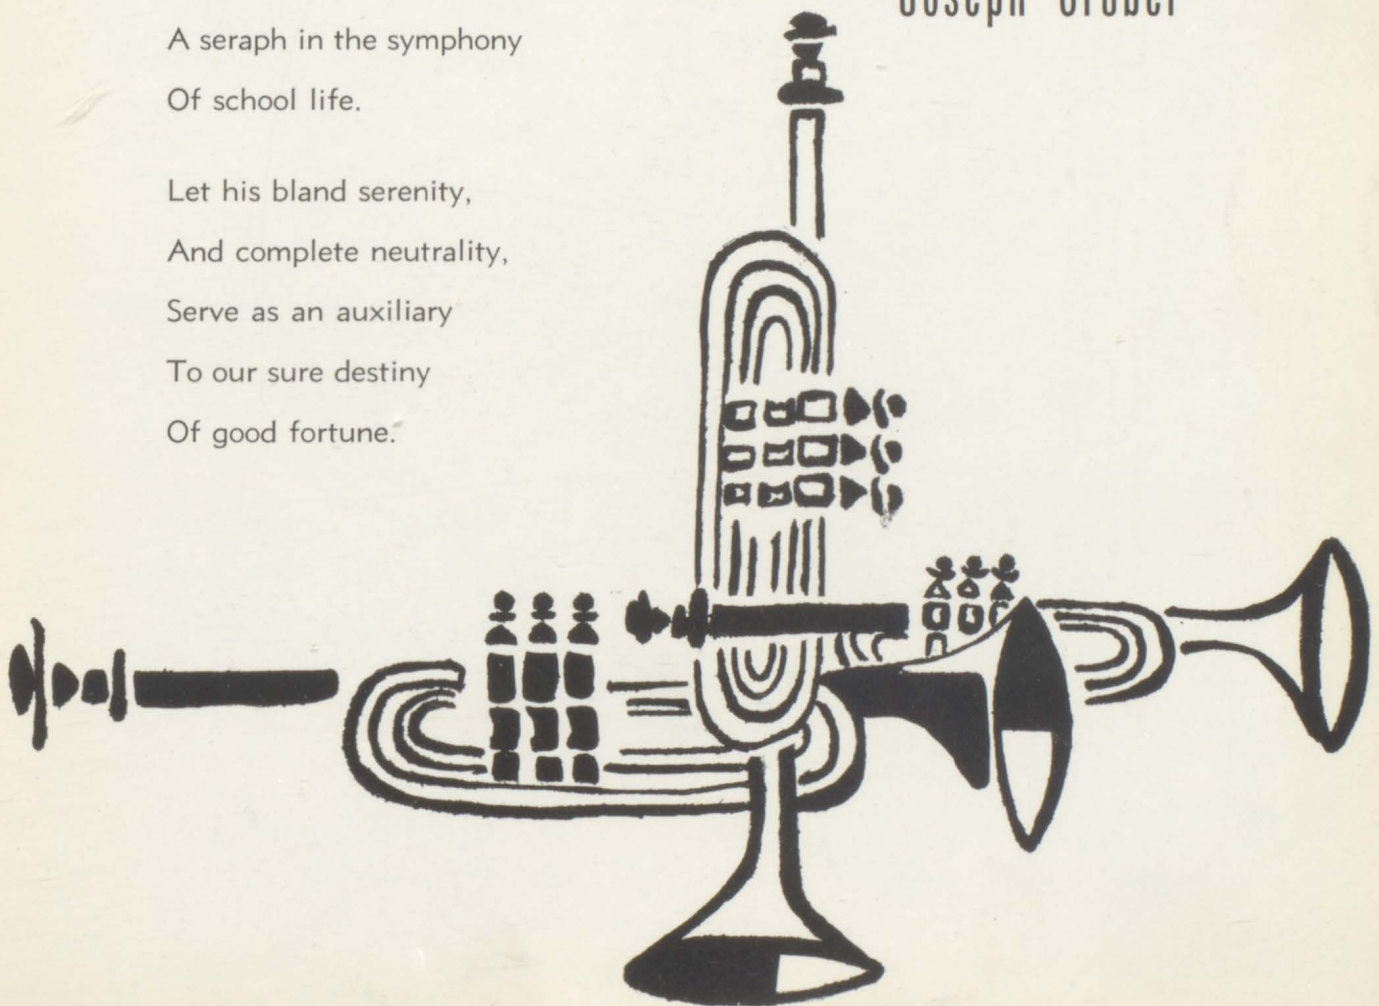

Our most cherished memory
Of a pulsing schoolery,
And teeming activity,
Shall include the melody
Of his guidance.

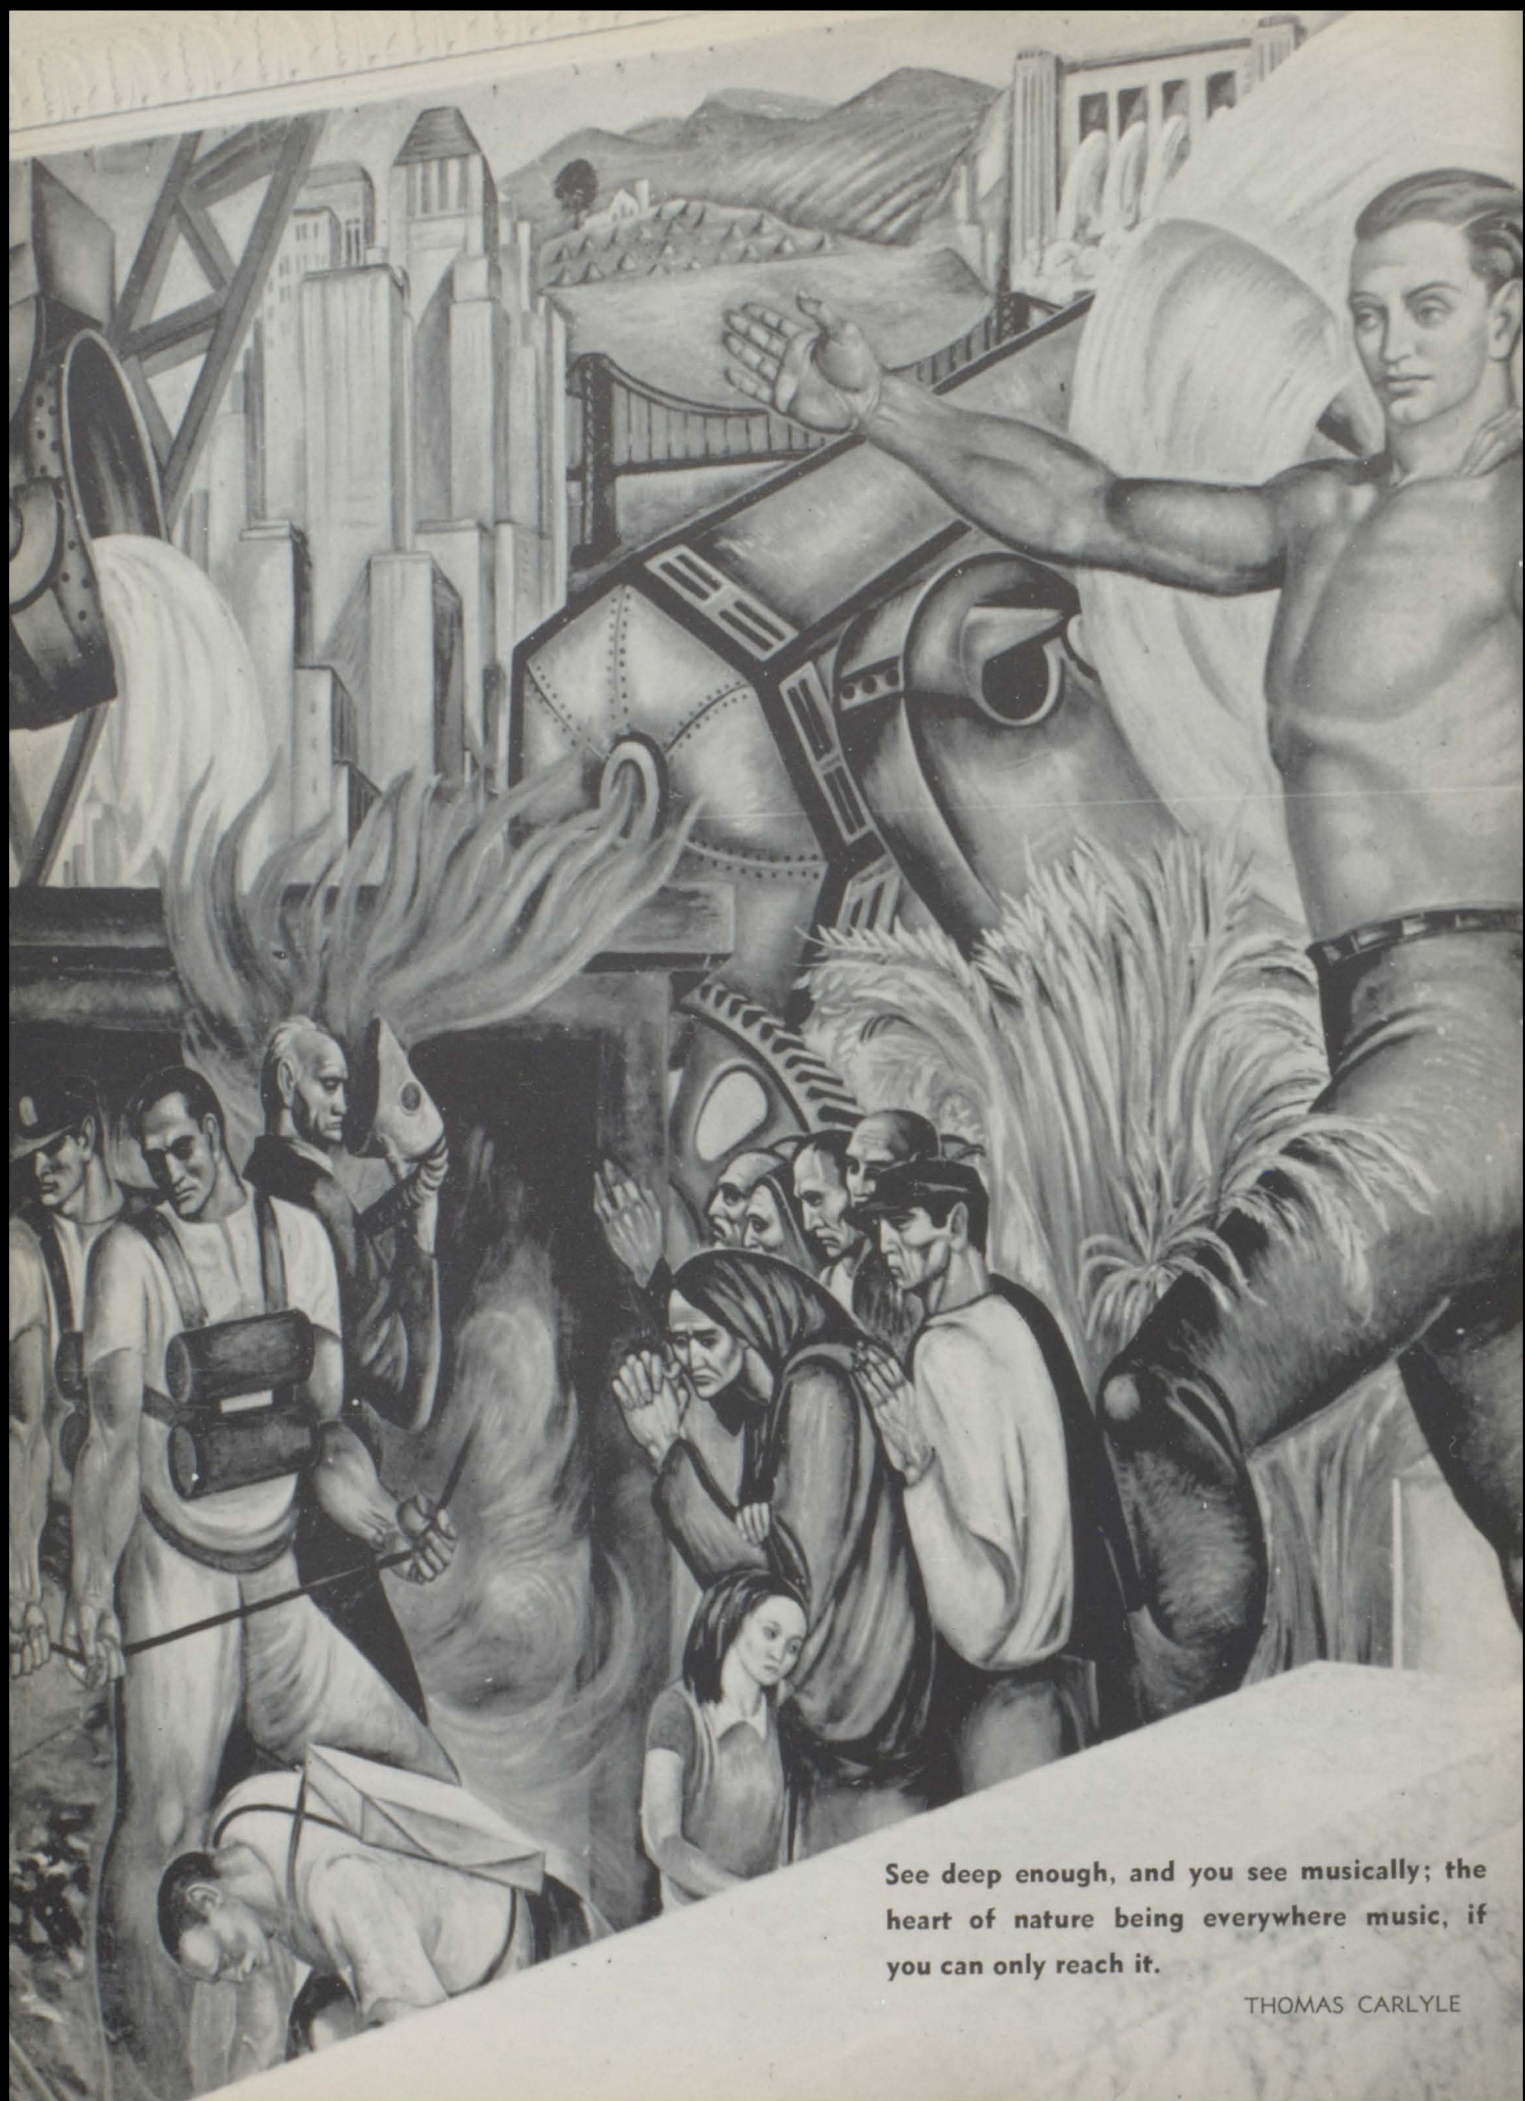

Fulfilling absolute decree
With casual simplicity,
And frankness and jollity;
A seraph in the symphony
Of school life.

Let his bland serenity,
And complete neutrality,
Serve as an auxiliary
To our sure destiny
Of good fortune.

Joseph Gruber

See deep enough, and you see musically; the heart of nature being everywhere music, if you can only reach it.

JULIUS C. BERNSTEIN
PRINCIPAL

It is heartening to find a class that devotes its year-book to serious music in this rock and roll age; heartening, because the choice bears out a belief that I have held for many years. I firmly believe the high school students of our age have been seriously underrated by sensational journalists and prophets of doom. Your generation is no less worthy, no less capable, no less industrious, no less serious than those which preceded you. I am convinced that you too will make your mark as citizens in a world of confusion and stress. Carrying on bravely in the years ahead, you can do as well or better than your elders have done, I am certain.

OUR UNFINISHED SYMPHONY

ALLEGRO

As the curtain rises, groups of bewildered, aimless freshmen are seen clustered at the front, back, and sides of the Weequahic High School Annex auditorium. Their eager young faces cry joy, fear, fun, hope, anxiety. The scene is animated, rich in quality, yet hushed, low in pitch.

A special phase in our lives has begun. We are the new crop of Weequahic freshmen. Our social life centers around the Chancellor "Y", Friday night movies and hot dogs at Syd's.

This is the beginning — the first stage — where new habits are molded, new acquaintances made.

ANDANTE

In the halls of Weequahic High School, we are again confused, bewildered by the magnitude and strangeness of the Main Building. To the upper-classman, we sophomores seem cute and comical; to ourselves, we seem unimportant and gauche. We are alone, disunited, and insecure. We know nothing of the true class spirit that comes only from working together as a dedicated, co-ordinated group. We are allegro, staccato.

SCHERZO

With the election of class officers, the strong third act begins. The jubilant winners of the junior class elections are Jerry Marger, Mike Siegel, De Anne Gulkin, and Abby Lerman.

Our first class event, the 3B picnic, is a fine success. We now know a certain pride, the pride that comes from a unified, well-organized effort.

The picnic scene with its uncertain and tentative arias is replaced by the bolder, more certain, Square Dance Song. The sounds of gay music and joyful mirth echo through the air. Everyone is satisfied in this Li'l Abner-Daisy Mae world.

Our junior year is concluded in full orchestration symbolizing the emergence of a cohesive group of more mature young people.

PRESTO

The final act reveals all the vagaries of mood that music can create. As seniors, we begin softly and build to an overwhelming crescendo.

The first musical score is "You Can't Take it With You," our 3A-4B class play. But this melody is soon interrupted by a crash of drums heralding the torch's passing from old to new.

The music of the second movement is soft, and sweet, and enchanting. We dance in velvet shoes amidst soft lanterns and Oriental bliss in the utopian world of Shangri-La.

In a change of stress, the soloists, Mike Siegel, Howard Cassell, De Anne Gulkin and Abby Lerman, in proud voice, sing of their recognition and prepare to lead the symphony.

Gradually, a melancholy, haunting melody reveals itself. With it comes memories of the prom, commencement, and those days of our youth to which we now bid goodby. But in this melody we find an overpowering theme that reminds us of learned experiences, of fulfilled relationships, of the growth of ideas, which, like this music, will continue to grow.

IN CONCERT

ELIZABETH C. MANNING

THE STRING SECTION

The 8:30 time tone has just blared the beginning of the official homeroom period. We see the members of homeroom 115 deeply absorbed in Carole Lewis' rendition of the morning notices. An atmosphere of "togetherness" pervades the room thanks to the influence of the J. C. Bernstein Advertising Agency. Let us look into this five times a week Manning spectacular which commands everyone's interest — voluntary or involuntary.

* * *

Laura Coddington is one of the first to arrive and involves herself in a chemistry problem with Harvey Douglen, who is, at the same time, involved in the distribution of the New York Times. In rushes Roberta Siegel, waving a letter from Sam and quoting, "They only tell you you're a Marine and to be good." Roberta, Sharyn Herman, and Brenda Gepner discuss such U. S. Marine brutality and the difficulties of "going steady" without a "steady."

Bound for the bedroom are Gloria Hirschorn and Myrna Kalb, engrossed in their Saturday night dates and apparel. Oblivious of their entrance are Marcia Cook, Iris Tiplitz, and Gail Lawrence. Gail is trying out a new shade of lipstick and the girls are about to comment on Lawrence in lavender, when in walks Mrs. Manning announcing, "No more than three girls are allowed in the bedroom at one time." To Marcia and Iris she suggests they rid themselves of the "hardware" in their hair. Of all she requests the removal of the "cuds of gum" from their mouths.

Mrs. Manning re-enters the homeroom in time to enlist efficient Tom Boose, Gerald Halper, and Gary Tiplitz into living room furniture rearrangement and window opening.

Susan Princer and Elaine Siegel wishfully discuss their purchases from the Times ads until Linda Goffman, with realistic and charming relief, proudly tells the newest accomplishments of her little brother.

Later-comers are serenaded by Allan Hill, John Loney, and Larry White who are booming the latest rock 'n' roll number. Overcome by the rhythm, Billy "the Stroll" Lemer grabs Eulalia Moore and Marilyn Stanford to demonstrate his dancing facility, in which process he knocks over several occupied seats.

Meanwhile, George Silverman and Oleg Olas are debating whether Brigitte Bardot is a reactionary or radical, and which magazine gives better news coverage, Mad or Confidential.

Arriving just before the 8:20 warning bell, Clifford Gerber and Gordon Forgash are presented overdue library slips and dire predictions from Mrs. Manning. Scurrying out of the room, they jostle Joel Schwartz and Harold Goldberg who are comparing sadist jokes.

The 8:30 bell rings; the class settles down — almost. Standing just inside the door, breathless Gloria Levine explains, "The bus was late again." In turn, Mrs. Manning explains, "You're late, young lady. You'd better report to the auditorium for detention."

* * *

The 8:30 time tone has just blared the beginning of the official homeroom period . . .

SIDNEY SPERBER

THE WOOD-WIND SECTION

As the eight o' clock chimes announce the dawn of a new school day, Mr. Sperber is awakened by the creaking of the door. It's Goldye Silverman, who cheerily greets him with a "Good morning." Before he can send her to office on special missions, however, Goldye flees to the sanctuary of Homeroom 306.

The day officially begins as the first batch of diligent 216-ers march through the door. Neal Judas and Allen Binik arrive to complete yesterday's labs, and are soon joined by Barry Adler, Phyllis Marin, and Adriana Bellomo.

Carol Rogovoy and George Greenstein arrive together and promptly become involved in a mild dispute with Mr. Sperber.

While Ron Weinstock and Howard Palan discuss the latest happenings in the sports world, we hear a fiendish cackle coming from the back of the room. The noise is the exchange between Flora Seagull and Richie Goldner of some humorous anecdotes.

Adding to the merriment are Dave Lippman, Larry Kraus, and Barton Marias, who are chanting a "boom-boom" song of probable Greenwich Village origin.

By this time, things are hopping in this wacky homeroom. They reach a pitch when Sue Yankowitz shrieks: "Everybody, Irv's coming home!"

As if there isn't enough chaos, we now see Alan Pressman being attacked by various members of the class for not having the New York Times, whereupon the disgruntled Mr. Pressman floods the air with forceful invective.

Once again, we have a flurry of activity in the back of the room. Stuart Norman and Phyllis Weinberg are having their morning tete-a-tete, Barbara Steinberg is gaily pretending to forge an absence note, Herby Jones and John Pace are discussing the latest auto news, and Nancy Spector is busy coaching a crowd of hopeful young Boosterites. While all this is going on, the door is flung open, and in blast the latecomers: Mike Siegel, Gloria Lebowitz, Morey Bobrow, and Narda Mandell.

8:25, and the morning is almost — oh, oh, what's that grumbling noise? Of course, it's Larry Steiner. The day would not be complete without a complaint from Larry about school, the students, the faculty, or the world in general.

Jerry Marger (furiously trying to read the notices) and Rochelle Pinkowitz ("Sit down so I can take the attendance.") try to compete with the classroom cacophony.

Looking at the clock, we can see that it is now 8:29. In one minute, homeroom will officially begin. There it is! Yes, as the 8:30 bell sinks slowly into the west, we can hear the dulcet tones of Mr. Sperber who is screaming: "When are you bringing your absence note, Attles?"

LAURA M. ISSERMAN

THE BRASS SECTION

At the well-timed arrival of Sue Zucker and Andrea Forman, everyone knows it is exactly 8:30; but, the homeroom period does not actually begin until Harriet Furst has applied her make-up fastidiously and Fran Aronow and Narlene Friedenberg have marked absent those people in their seats.

Mrs. Isserman informs the class, "This is not a socializing event," which induces Joan Ellis and Jerry Kolton to continue their intellectual discussion.

Irene Daniels and Maxine Lucas fight to borrow the intellectual section (comics) of Alan Gaidemak's intellectual newspaper — The Star Ledger. Judi Albaum cracks jokes for appreciative Barbara Codner, Catherine Cullen and Henrietta Weil; Anita Karr and Morton Katz converse; and, Martin Finkelstein begins collecting money for the Herald Tribune and United Appeals at the same time. Brenda Reyes, wishing to antagonize anyone, pounces upon Elizabeth Ostrosky and Bonnie Kirsch. DeAnne Gulkin and Howard Cassell (lately returned from 306) are unperturbed and arguing.

Things really settle down somewhat: Richard Marks, Barry Blinder, and Sheldon Kelner drift into deep sleep; Mary Griffin and Rita Bemby quietly discuss their weekend. But when Tom Jenkins and Robert Boyle begin to practice outdoor track indoors, once more there is uproar. To all this Susan Steinlight is oblivious. As soon as the announcements are read, discussed and condemned by the listening minority of the class, opinions are voiced on lab rejects, prom bids, and Johnny Mathis. The familiar, ominous chant begins 5, 4, 3, 2, and the 1 and the bell are simultaneous. All activity halts (or begins).

THE PERCUSSION SECTION

Sounding like a tremendous clash of cymbals, the door of homeroom 306 slams to a close behind Phil Bennett, who officially begins the morning with the plea, "Who's got yesterday's lab?" To this Sandra Karnofsky replies, "I wouldn't know. Anyway, what's a lab?" Bill Nicolaro and Warren Butler are busy discussing their favorite barbers, while Harriet Hirschfeld and Allan Kierman labor frantically over the assembly seating chart.

Marilyn Schwartz can now be seen rushing breathlessly to Harriet Arons to discuss with her their newest plan for their protégé, Richard Hoppe. Harold Harris arrives with the New York Times and makes a desperate attempt to collect next week's money even though it's only Monday, while Alex Gottfried announces that anyone who wants to make a bank deposit must do so immediately, if not sooner.

In the midst of this pandemonium, Melvin Jacoby is heard mumbling, "Hey, man, you study for the French, man?" to Carol Engelhardt, who grits her teeth and replies, "Fermes la bouche et allez-vous-en!" Carol's loud exclamations awaken Abby Lerman and Howie from their dream world in time for only a short, tender goodbye before Howie rushes to his own homeroom.

Suddenly we hear the melodious tinkle of the late bell, followed by the discord of Bob Levy and Marilyn Eisenberg. Including these perennial latecomers in her affectionate glance, Mrs. Block cheerily smiles, "Good morning, children," and tries to calm the chaos. Gary Hirschorn, the chairman, then begins to create more disorder while calling for order, but after being threatened with impeachment by Mrs. Block, he becomes quiet and proceeds to silence Yogi Siegel, Donald "Slim" Slimowitz, Paul Berlin, Ronny Way, and Ira Sokoloff, all of whom are deeply engrossed in the day's football predictions led by the master of them all, Bob King.

When peace is finally established, we are confronted with a list of those with long overdue absence excuses. In a rhythmic chant that by now is practically memorized, they are called again: Bunin, Butler, Heller, Lipsher, Riker, and Rogen. With this detail out of the way, we detect an ominous quiet emanating from the corner of the room where Carol Wodnick and Mike Vogelstein are sitting. It seems all too quiet, as if they're planning one more of a million pranks.

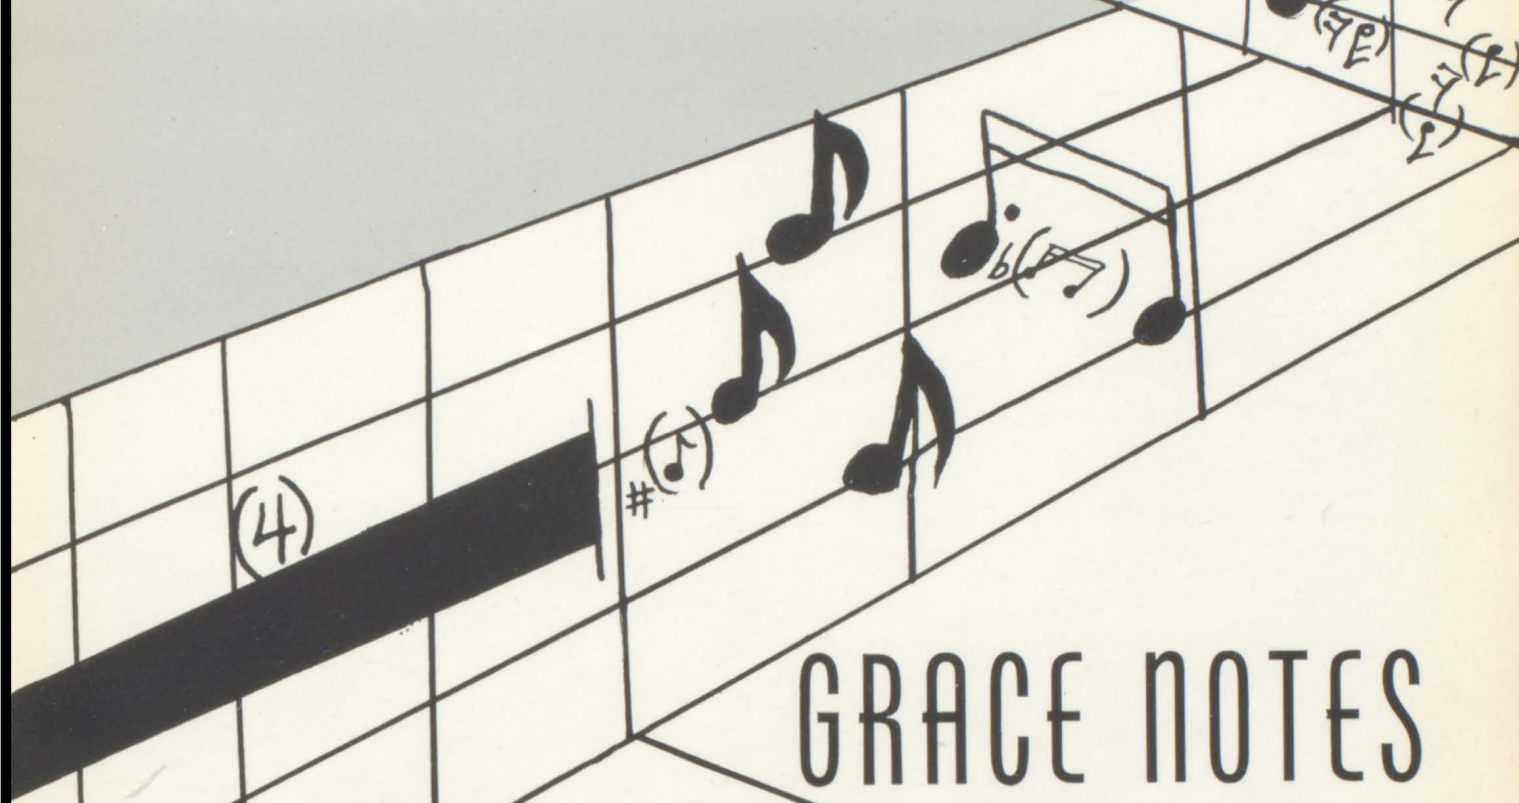

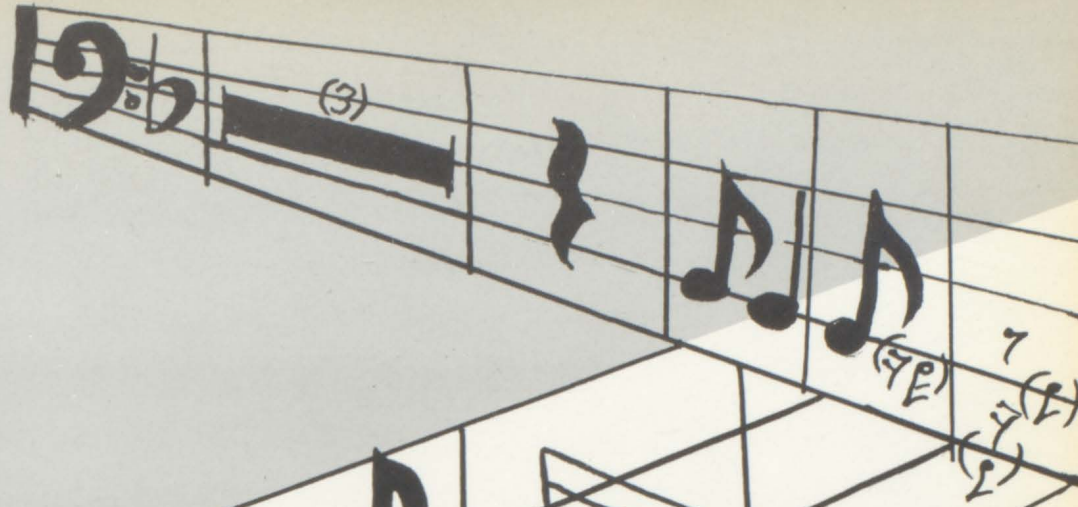

Before long, someone remembers he needs a blank for a Legend ad, and a mad rush ensues to terminate Rose Eng's seemingly endless supply.

We have just about settled down to do last night's homework or catch up on a little sleep when we are shaken from our seats by the passing bell. As we pour out of homeroom, Mrs. Block reaches for her aspirins to relieve the pounding headache caused by her beloved "percussion section."

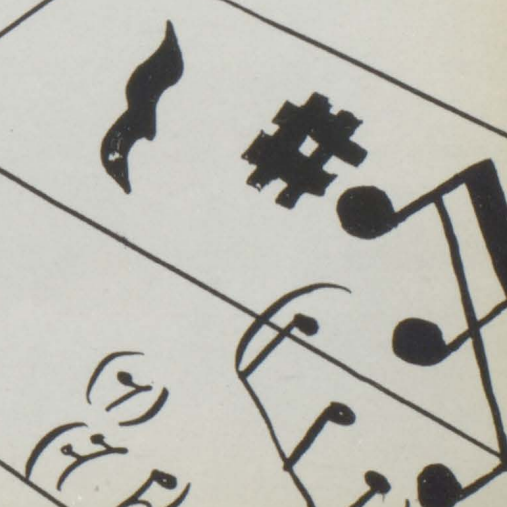

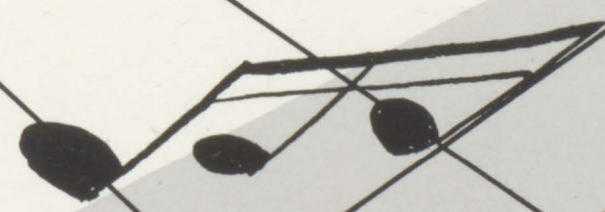

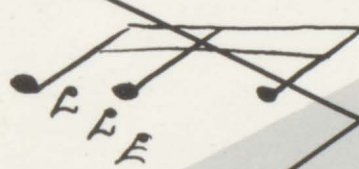

CODA

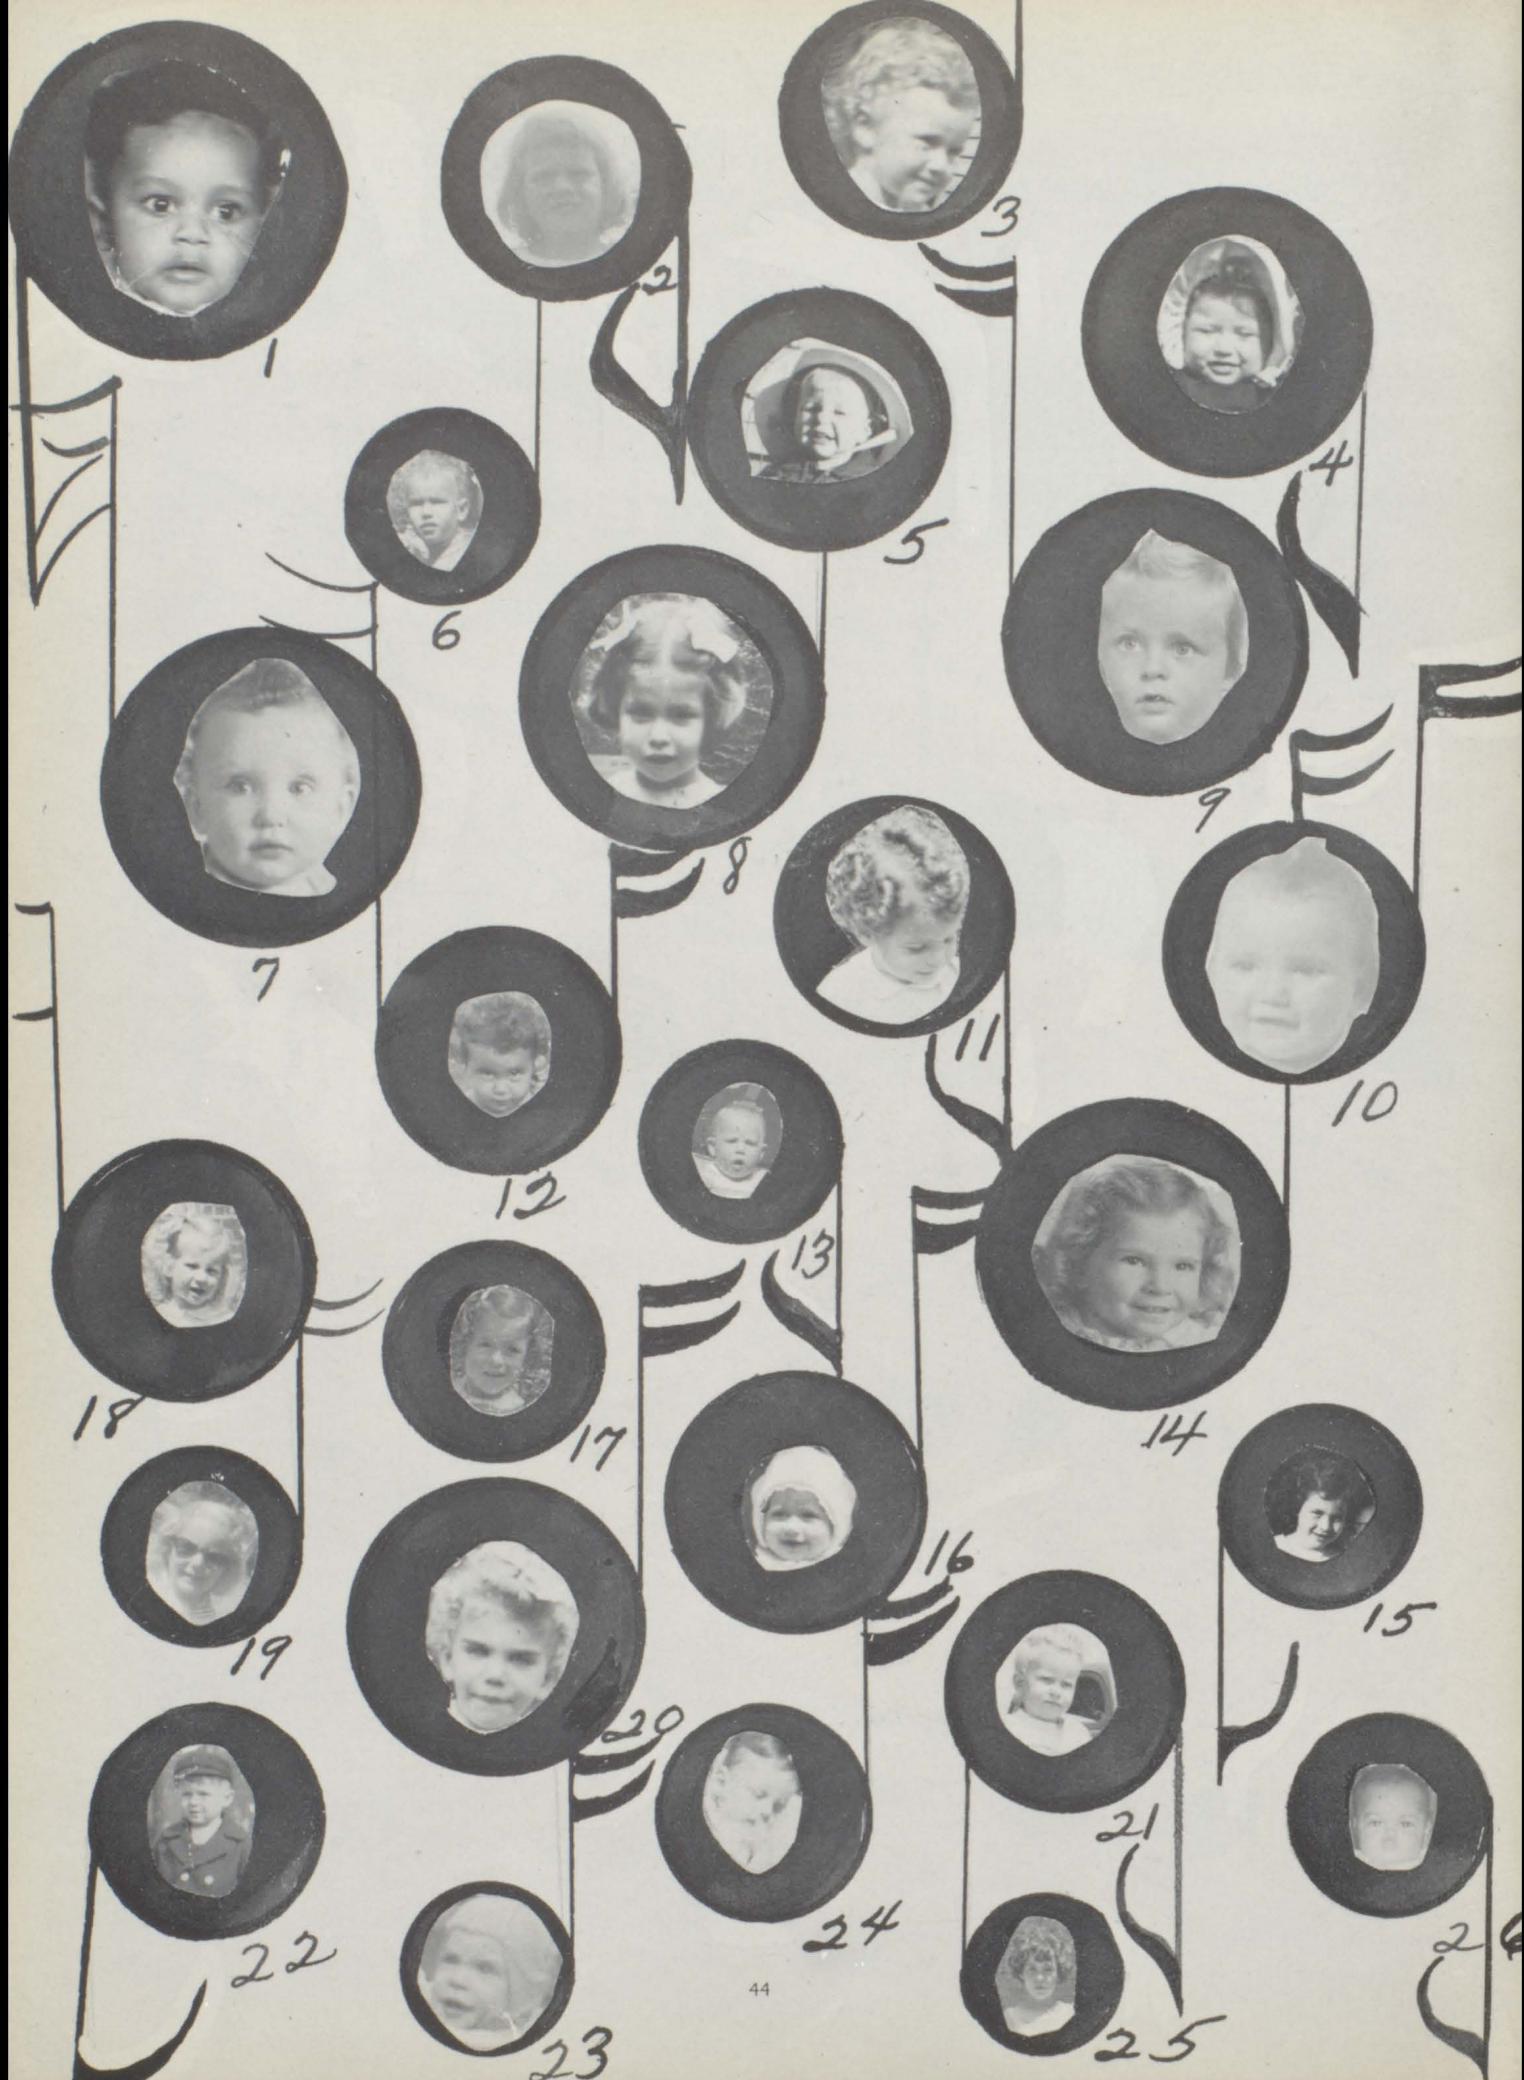

Our coda, our concluding passage in Weequahic High School, harmonizes for us many poignant and amusing memories with binding, yet elastic, relationships. We would bestow mementos of our presence on those we love.

- To Mr. Bernstein — We leave our deepest admiration and appreciation.
- To Mr. Gruber — We leave another class as wonderful as ours to guide.
- To Mrs. Manning — We leave a co-ed cooking class.
- To Mr. Sperber — We leave a lifetime supply of aspirin.
- To Mr. Isserman — We leave a checking account.
- To Mrs. Block — We leave a year-round subscription to the American Observer and a potted plant.
- To Miss Feitel — We leave a collection of portraits by Mr. Lynch.
- To Mr. Rubinfeld — We leave our guidance records.
- To Mr. Goldberg — We leave horror tales to read on the loud speaker system.
- To Mr. Martino — We leave an autographed album of lab rejects.
- To Mr. Brenman — We leave Brigitte Bardot.
- To Mr. Stamelman — We leave another Harold Harris to spark his English 6 class.
- To Mrs. Glucksman — We leave a Carmen costume.
- Mr. Bruder — We leave a new florist shop.
- To Mr. Epstein — We leave an Elvis Presley button.
- To Mrs. Birnbaum — We leave a date with Zorro.
- To Mrs. Jennings — We leave a class which will absorb "thoughts from the printed page."
- To Mrs. Rous — We leave a class of "live" pupils.
- To Mr. Gross — We leave a toga and a crew of assassins.
- To Mrs. Mazaica — We leave a new tom-tom and honorary membership to the Sioux Indian Tribe.
- To Mrs. Lappe — We leave a membership in the Max Lerner Fan Club.
- To Mr. Cascella — We leave a feudal estate complete with boobs and barons.
- To Mr. Schwartz — We leave a new assortment of "cookies", "sweeties", "dolls", and "lovers" to be his secretaries.

The Orange and Brown
We're on our way
To meet the foe.
This is the day
For us to go.
And with our banners flying O so high,
With our spirits soaring to the sky,
Now hear our rousing cry: Rah! Rah! Rah!
When we come back,
You're sure to see
That we have won a victory.
Cheers ring! We bring
More honor to Weequahic High.

OUR GIRLS

Athletic events wouldn't be half the fun they are without the twirlers, cheerleaders, and color guards — those enchanting girls who lend their sparkle, charm, and vivacity to every game.

Gloria Levine — Tall and striking, raven-haired Gloria Levine, a veteran of the twirling squad for three years, proudly holds the title of Captain.

DeAnne Gulkin — Dee, a friendly, popular majorette, with golden tresses and a warm, sunny smile, is a devoted member of the twirling squad.

Harriet Furst — Harriet Furst's winning combination of good looks and pleasant personality can always be counted upon to boost the team's morale. The charming Miss Furst is Co-Captain of the cheerleading squad.

Nancy Spector — The voice of cheerleading Co-Captain, Nancy Spector, can be heard above the din at all the games; her enthusiasm has always been an inspiration to the Indians.

Susan Zucker — Bright-eyed Sue Zucker, a member of the cheerleading squad for three years, will be remembered for her graceful cartwheels.

Joan Ellis — Weequahic's attractive color guard, Joan Ellis, is admired by all who know her for her sincerity and charming personality.

Irene Daniels — The other senior Weequahic color guard is Irene Daniels, a friendly, easy-going girl who has certainly been an asset to the Wigwam.

To these girls, the guardians of our school spirit, we give thanks.

FOOTBALL

TOM JENKINS
Halfback

The senior gridders have made their last year at the Wigwam one for the school to remember. After many fruitless fall seasons, victory has finally come to the Weequahic football team. This is indeed a tribute to the Indian football players and their able coach, Mr. Lou Stamelman.

Morey Bobrow — Guard Morey Bobrow, won his letter as a junior. Bobrow was an outstanding guard and defensive "sparkplug" for the Indians. Here's a boy who has that real "get in there and fight" spirit.

Ronny Way — An outstanding runner is halfback Ronny Way. His coach and teammates agree that he is as fleet-footed as they come. He showed great ability offensively at the wingback spot.

Mike Siegel, president of the 4A class, did a great job as an Indian quarterback. Mike, a three-year veteran, has a football letter to his credit.

Tom Jenkins — Tom Jenkins, who has played football for three years, filled the halfback spot. Tom is an avid supporter of our athletic program.

Sandy Siegel — Sandy Siegel is another player who has proved himself a valuable asset to the team. It's Sandy who holds the ball for extra points after a touchdown. He has played guard, tackle, and center for the Indians.

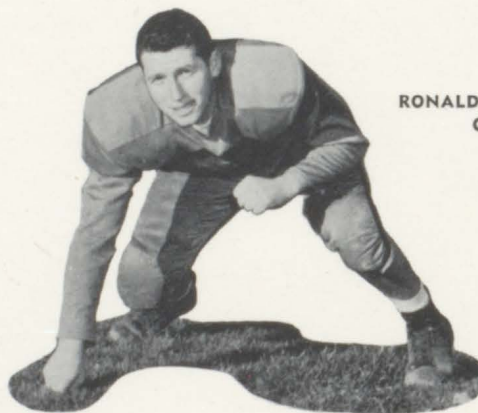

Ronny Weinstock — Finally, we come to the team's able manager, Ronny Weinstock. Ronny has plenty of experience, since he played on the team for three years and received two letters. The big moment in his life was scoring a touchdown against East Side in 1956.

These seniors of the January, 1959 class devoted their time and energy to uphold the Indians' reputation for fine sportsmanship and determination. This year their persistent efforts have finally been rewarded.

TRACK

Achieving an impressive record under the tutelage of Mr. Joe Nerenberg, the 1958 track team finished second in the city.

Ronny Way — While a member of the track team, Ronny Way, an outstanding sprinter, ran the one hundred yard dash and two hundred yard dash.

Mike Siegel — Mike Siegel, a veteran trackman, was a low hurdler and fine competitor.

Tom Boose — A new recruit on the track team this season was Tom Boose. His jumping ability helped the team win the City Championship.

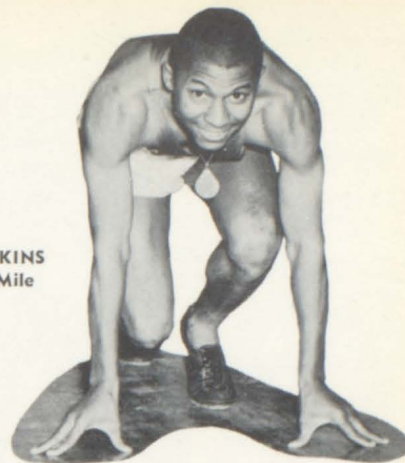

Larry Steiner — Although Larry was not a star performer, his competitive spirit and drive were valuable assets to the team.

Robert Boyle — As one of Weequahic's fine half-milers, Bob exhibited much of his fine ability in his three years at the Wigwam.

Tom Jenkins — Tom Jenkins, Weequahic's quarter-miler, shines for his versatility and team spirit.

All of these boys deserve hearty congratulations for their outstanding sportsmanship. The class of January, 1959, is indeed proud of them.

... AND OTHER STARS

Although much attention is focused on football, we must give due recognition to the cross-country, soccer, baseball, basketball, and swimming teams which have produced their share of well-trained athletes.

Tom Boose — If you should see a tall, rangy senior determinedly shooting baskets at the Chancellor playground, he will probably be Weequahic's pride, Tom Boose, who was named to last year's All City and All County basketball teams.

John Pace — Fleet-footed John Pace, an outstanding runner, contributed his talents which made Weequahic's cross-country team city champs this season.

Jerry Riker — Jerry Riker, as outfielder and batsman, was a valuable asset to "Spike" Schwartz's baseball team.

Sandy Siegel — The baseball team found another recruit in catcher Sandy Siegel. Sandy's friends call him "Porky" because he loves to eat and sleep — off the baseball diamond, that is.

Gerald Halper — Under the able leadership of their tall, dark, powerfully-built captain, Gerald Halper, the swimming team had a highly successful season.

Richard Marks — Lackadaisical Richie Marks, a member of the first Indian soccer team, is one of the select few who has been participating in this sport for the last four years.

Our class can boast many stand-outs of the 1958 season.
